and then go on from there × It was easy then because there was always one true sentence that you knew or had seen or ~~remembered~~ had heard someone say × If I started to write elaborately or else some one introducing or presenting something I found that I could cut that scroll work or ornament out and throw it away and start with the first true simple declarative sentence. I had written × Up in that room I decided that I would write one story about ~~every~~ each thing that I knew about. I was trying to do this all the time I was writing and it was very good and severe discipline × It was in that room too that I learned not to think about anything you that I was writing from the time I stopped writing until I started again the next day That way my subconscious would be working on it and at the same time I would be listening to other people, noticing everything, I hoped, hearing, I hoped, and I learned
