“Good Girls Go Bad” by Cobra Starship

Our heroine, Anna, is warned by her friend Jay not to fall victim to the “good girl syndrome” when she meets Kaidan Rowe. I think we all know he’s wasting his breath.

“Break Your Heart” by Taio Cruz

Kai attempts to instill a “healthy fear” into Anna, who tends to see the best in people. He gives her an honest and frightful glimpse of his dark nature and his past.

“My First Kiss” by 3OH!3 featuring Ke$ha

Road trip fun . . . I shall say no more. wink, wink

“Let It Rock” by Kevin Rudolf

Nobody rocks harder or brings a hotter fire than Kaidan Rowe. He’ll make you come alive and take you higher, as Anna learns firsthand.

“Bring Me to Life” by Evanescence

Just when Anna begins to feel alive for the first time, she’s immersed in the cold truth about how her life must be.

“Whataya Want from Me” by Adam Lambert

This question is asked in the Halloween chapter, but I imagine Kai feels this way a lot—wanting and needing, but unable to give in return.

“Waiting for the End” by Linkin Park

This is the song I see Anna playing over and over during those lonely holiday scenes, living at the mercy of the pain and the fear.

“Clocks” by Coldplay

This song encompasses what Kai experiences in the ending chapters surrounding the summit: cursing missed opportunities, wondering if he’ll always be part of the disease rather than the cure.
